

Christos Frangoulis, graduated at the Medical School of Aristotelean University of Thessaloniki, Greece. Trained in Ophthalmology in Greece (Municipal Hospital of Thessaloniki – Greece) and mainly in U.K. Diploma in Ophthalmology (D.O.) (1967-U.K.)Trained on Contact Lenses at the Contact Lens Department of Moorfields Eye Hospital (Prof M. Ruben).

PhD 1980.

From 1967 to 1997 elected in various posts of the University Eye Clinic at the AXEPA University Hospital in Thessaloniki – Greece becoming eventually Professor in Ophthalmology and Director of the Eye Department.

In 1997 retired from the University post but keep up with private practice.

Member of the Royal College of Ophthalmologists (MRCOphth.), Hellenic Ophthalmological Society, Ophthalmological Society of Northern Greece. Founding and first President of the Hellenic Ophthalmological Contact Lens Society (HeOCLS) (1995).

Member of the ECLSO for first time in 1970 being introduced by Prof M. Ruben the first President of the ECLSO at the time.

Fields of special interest in Ophthalmology: contact lenses, cornea with special focus on clinical keratoconus and strabismus.

More than 70 published papers.Participation in more than 75 ophthalmological congresses, symposia etc.